

Regarding the current changes in regulation for Broadcasting I want rules which favor breadth rather than narrowing of ownership of information channels to the public.

I regard the present argumentation of the need for further narrowing of ownership specious, and self serving to the powerful and already established moneyed interests.... And will hold the current FCC and whole Executive Administration responsible for an apparent furtherance of any further consolidation of this power.

For Profit Corporations are primarily formed for self interest, not public interest, and the former will always win out over the latter when there are any conflicts between the two.

John Waldo